DR. E. P. SANDSTEN HORTICULTURIST

Appointed to Chair of Horticulture and Forestry During Holidays

During the holidays, it was announced by the college authorities that Dr. E. P. Sandsten had been appointed to the Chair of Horticulture and Forestry, succeeding the late Prof. P. F. Williams, and his arrival was hailed with interest by the students of the Agricultural Department. He came Wednesday and has taken active charge of the affairs of the Horticultural Department.

Dr. Sandsten graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1892, taking his M. S. degree in 1893. For five years after graduation he was employed as botanist by a large manufacturing concern. In 1898 he received the degree of Ph. D. from Cornell University. He then went to the Maryland Agricultural College where he filled the chair of Professor of Horticulture for two years, after which he became Professor of Horticulture and State Horticulturist at the University of Wisconsin. In this capacity Dr. Sandsten served for eight years, finally resigning to go into commercial work with a large irrigation, orchard and land company in Western Montana, where he remained until coming to Auburn.

Dr. Sandsten is the author of a number of valuable publications on horticultural subjects. He comes to us highly recommended, is a gentleman of pleasing address, and his wide experience will doubtless render him indispensable in the agricultural work of the college. The A. P. L. is to be congratulated upon securing the services of such a man. He has a home and property interests in Montana, but will bring his family here in a short time. The college, students and people of Auburn extend them a warm welcome and trust that their associations will be of mutual benefit.

SOCCER FOOTBALL AT AUBURN.

Last year Coach Donahue organized the first soccer or association football team that has ever represented Auburn. The team made a splendid record, holding Atlanta, the champions of the South, to the score of 2-1, which is excellent, considering the fact that only one man on the Auburn team had ever played the game before. The game seemed to meet with the approval of the students, and it is hoped by all that it will remain one of the number of winter sports at Auburn. This season's practice has commenced in earnest and quite a number of last year's men are seen on the field; among them are: Capt. Arnold, Major, Newell, Louisell, Hart, Cogswell, Pitts, Stewart, Hayne, and Kearley. Under the able coaching of Coach Donahue and Capt. Arnold the team is expected to make a great record.

ZOOLOGICAL ITEM.

"What is the cause of the Laughing Hyena's mirth?"
"Oh, it tickles him to hear the Bull Moose bragging how much more honest he is than the Elephant and the Donkey."

ORGANIZATION OF GLEE CLUB BEGUN.

If you can sing, now is the time to show it. The Auburn Glee Club is at last hard at work, having had its first practice last Friday night. There never have been better opportunities for the club than those that are offered now. The college will furnish sufficient funds to secure the services of an expert choral trainer who will try out individual voices and develop the club as a whole. And when the songsters can sing and the mandolin club can play, the Glee Club will have a long list of towns to visit. It is possible for the club to take a six day trip on which it will sing for nothing but girl's colleges. Think of it! A reception every night, and so many chances to lose one's heart! Every man ought to try out this year. It costs nothing and it may lead to unthought of attainments.

Watch the bulletin board and the "Glee Club Tree." It is the tree that is in the walk in front of Langdon Hall. From time to time notices that will be of interest to all the college boy musicians will appear at both these places.

BE ONE OF ONE HUNDRED.

That the Y. M. C. A. rooms are proving a benefit to Auburn men is demonstrated by the number who use them every day. The men who live at a distance from the college are finding them especially convenient and numbers of men are finding it a good place to "drop in" before and after roll calls and drills to look over the papers or to shoot a game of caroms. The shower baths are also proving to be very popular.

It is interesting to note the increase in membership that the new equipment has brought about. The total number of paid members is now two hundred and fifty-four, over twice as many as there were at this time last year. However with seven hundred and fifty men in school the number ought to be much larger than this, and the committee is now beginning a campaign to get one hundred more men to join. The dues from December 1 to the end of the year are only $1.50, and surely this is within the reach of all.

Many reasons could be given why a man should join, a few of which it might be well to give here:

First—Every man should support the Association because of the moral and religious influence it exerts on college life.

Second—Because of the privileges it offers. Looking at it from a purely selfish standpoint, the baths that a man takes during the year, or the coal that a man saves by using the rooms is equal to double the fee he pays to say nothing of the rest of it.

To every man, whether he has the privileges offered in his boarding house or fraternity hall or not, we appeal to support the Association as a matter of college spirit because it is a good thing, just as he does athletics or the college paper. If you are not already a member, be one of one hundred to join.

GOING SOME

Crawford—"To what do you attribute the prevalence of divorce?"

Crabshaw—"To the fact that so many believe in a short married life and a merry one."

INTERESTING PROGRAM AT WIRT SOCIETY

All Are Invited to Attend. Addresses by Members of the Faculty

Last Saturday night the members of the Wirt Society met and made New Year resolutions. As a result of the meeting the members present resolved to get together and work hard and give the "Wirt" such an impetus that it will soon be one of the biggest and best literary societies in the South.

A. E. Hale and O. I. Gaines were appointed a committee of two to get new members, and fill the hall to overflowing. R. M. Hudson and A. Bonds were given the task of beautifying the Wirt Hall; and R. M. Hudson and J. A. Key are to have charge of the program for this term. These men are instructed to get busy and make things hum.

Tonight there will be no regular program, but the society will be addressed by members of the College Faculty. Dr. Thach, a Wirt of the class of '11, will tell of the Wirt Society in the "Old Days." Professor Wannamaker will speak on the "Possibilities of a Literary Society." Professors Webb and Bragg will speak on literary society work in general.

The program is sure to be both interesting and instructive and all students who have any interest in literary society work are cordially invited to be present, whether they are members of the Wirt Society or not. The meeting will be in the Wirt Hall on the third floor of the main building at half-past seven o'clock.

CLASS FOOTBALL COMES INTO THE LIMELIGHT.

The class football bee has been buzzing for the past week, and probably in the course of the next few days the athletic fields will be covered with many husky warriors, representing the Senior, Junior, Sophomore and Freshmen classes. The classes have elected the following coaches:

Seniors—J. B. Steadham to coach the back field and J. E. Pitts to have charge of the line work.

Juniors—J. K. Newell.
Sophomores—J. P. Major.
Freshmen—T. E. Arnold.

The class games have always been fast and furious, but the ones this year will surpass any of previous years. The Seniors with such men as Morrow, Rabb, Carter, Pickett, Zard and Smith, as a nucleus have great hopes of turning out the championship team. The Juniors with Noble, Faucett, Hallmark and Cook all stars of the scrub team of the past year, will show someone a great game in the run for the championship. The Sophomores with Davidson, Young, Howe and others, have great hopes of turning out a winning team. And the Freshmen with "Babe" Taylor, Wynne and Knapp as their share of stars from this season's scrub team—and a great amount of material from which to pick an excellent team—have threatened all opponents with "total extermination"—and they will certainly be a dangerous opponent to any of the championship aspirants.

BASKETBALL SQUAD WORKING HARD.

Though greatly handicapped this year by the loss of Captain-elect Murdock, Major, Burke and Duncan, the basketball season at Auburn has nevertheless opened with a rush, and "Old Auburn" is expected to hold her own with any Southern college, with such men on the squad as: Scarborough, who has played guard on the varsity for the past three years—has always been Auburn's mainstay in that department of the game, and is expected to put up his same high class game this season. Major, Auburn's all-around athlete, did some good work on the basketball court last year and great things are expected of him the present season. Lacey, who plays guard in fine style—is expected to do some exceptionally good work this year. In Worrill and Clements, Auburn has two very good forwards, both played high class ball on the scrubs last year. Cook, Noble, Wilmore and Sparkman are all very promising men and will in all probability be seen in the line up during the year. Coach Donahue is putting his men through some very hard practice; getting them in the proper condition for the game with the Atlanta Athletic Club, next Saturday. All the men are doing their best—and Auburn is in a very fair way for making a good record this season.

1912 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED.

Auburn, Ala., Jan. 7.—With practically the same schedule as that of the season of 1912, with which Auburn made such a great record, the team of 1913 will find very little idle time.

The complete list of games as announced by Faculty Manager Thos. Bragg is as follows:

Oct. 4—Mercer at Auburn.
Oct. 11—Florida at Auburn.
Oct. 18—Clemson at Clemson.
Oct. 25—Mississippi A. & M. at Birmingham.
Nov. 1—Louisiana State University at Mobile.
Nov. 15—Vanderbilt at Birmingham.
Nov. 27—Georgia at Auburn.

NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS.

Ed. Clements—"Not to get married during the good year 1913."

Quinn—"To continue my popularity with the ladies."
J. J. Heard—"If possible, to outshine Quinn."

Denton—"To quit 'clubs' during the year, and stick to hearts, diamonds and spades."

Pat Wilson—"To refrain from visiting the 'Big City'."

Harry Kendall—"To refrain from acting as newspaper reporter at the Auburn-Vandy games."

Brittain—"To withdraw from the ring, and resign his title as the 'White Hope'."

THE RECALL.

The little man with the big glasses wanted to talk politics. When the man sitting beside him in the street car turned a page of the newspaper he was reading, he began,

"Do you happen to be for the recall of judges?"

"What! Me?" yelled the other, who had just been reading the sporting page. "Naw! I'm for the recall of the umpires!"

PROF. HUDNUT BRINGS BRIDE TO AUBURN

Popular Member of the Faculty Becomes a Benedict

A marriage of much interest among college circles was that of Mr. Joseph Hudnut and Miss Claire Ring which took place at Greystone, the home of the bride, Ambler, Pa. After a pleasant trip to points in Virginia they are at home to their friends at the residence of Mrs. A. L. Dillard, where they will spend the remainder of the college year.

Mr. Hudnut is the successor of Mr. N. C. Curtis to the chair of architecture. His degree in that line was received at the University of Michigan with special summer work at the University of Pennsylvania. He also attended Harvard for three years, doing literary work. Last year he was instructor in the technical schools of Detroit, which is his home.

MY SWEETHEART.

The tresses that my lady wears
Must have an auburn hue;
Her eyes, as clear as diamonds,
Must be a heavenly blue;
And in her eyes a light must glow
With love that's real and true.

Her cheeks must blush like rosebuds

New-opened to the year;
Her lips must smile, and whisper
Sweet words of hope and cheer
And love and joy and happiness,
That banish doubt and fear.

She must be very graceful,
And sensible and kind,
And yet as pure and gentle
As autumn's softest wind:
And then she'll be my sweetheart:
I can see her in my mind.

I see her every moment,
Awake, or e'en asleep;
And just because I love her,
Sweet rejoicings I reap.
But, ah! I am not with her,
And at times this makes me weep. —K.K.

MY BOUQUET.

Her hair is like the goldenrod,
Her cheeks are like the rose,
Her eyes are sweet forgetmenots,
I really do suppose.

Her lips are smiling rosebuds,
Made just for me to—see,
Her teeth are pearly snowdrops,
Or so they look to me.

Her hands are Easter lilies,
That whisper of the Star;
Her fingers are white daisies,—
At least, I guess they are.

And when I'm with my bouquet
Of dainty flowers seven,
I think I'm just as happy
As Angels are in Heaven. —K.K.

A MISPLACED "M."

Mrs. La Follette, wife of Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, tells of a country newspaper which, in reporting the speech of her celebrated husband, intended to add as comment, "And the masses believed him," said, instead, "And the asses believed him."

AUBURN, ALA, JANUARY 11, 1913

Holidays are over and most of us are back in harness and pulling in what seems to be the same old rut. Many of us have made New Year's resolutions in regard to the tremendous amount of work that we expect to do during the two remaining terms. Of course those resolutions will be broken as usual and we shall have to consider ourselves lucky if we just get through on finals. But fellows, let us all make one "Post New Year's Resolution" and keep it. Let each one of us resolve to boost the Home Coming Movement at Commencement, 1913. Let us resolve to do all in our power to make it a complete success. In next week's issue of the "Orange and Blue" will appear an article taken from the Alumni Quarterly and dealing with Alumni Association plans. Read that article. It concerns you. It was printed in August and back to June 4, 1912; so it may seem like ancient history. But it is on the contrary a very live topic. When first conceived, the idea seemed like one of Tom Bragg's pipe dreams, and perhaps it was then. But since he had his dream, or rather glorious vision of a Great Home Coming for all Auburn Alumni in 1913 Tom Bragg has been working like a Trojan. Happily for Auburn he is not a dreamer who is content only to dream, but he is a man who dreams and then gets out and hustles. As a result the Home Coming has progressed from a vague possibility through a state of probability, to one of dead certainty. It is "Sho nuff gonner happen."

It is to be the biggest thing that has ever happened in any college or university in the South. It is the biggest thing that can possibly happen to Auburn. It will be big without your support, but you can help make it bigger. You owe it to Auburn to do all in your power to boost it. Make it a point to write personal letters to all of your acquaintances, friends, or relatives who have ever attended Auburn, and tell them all about it. Don't just mention it in a casual way but read the article on association plans over until you know it and think of it until you are bubbling over with the Home Coming idea. Then get busy and write letters that demand an answer. Be urgent, insistent, or pleading, as the case may require, but let us all pull together and get two thousand Alumni back here for Commencement this year.

PESSIMISM.

"The world is bad, totally bad!" wailed the pessimist. "Graft and grafters everywhere! Even some of the stars are fixed!"

A SENIOR'S RETROSPECT.

(With Apologies.)—By "Pete."

Old Auburn, loveliest city of the plain,
Where "rats" galore get off the West Point train;
Where idle "old men" to the depot hie,
To greet new boys and try to make them cry;
Sweet, lovely, seats of learning and of pain,
Where, when I smiled, I did not so again;
How often have I hid beneath the bed,
And dared not speak or even raise my head;
How often have the "cats" espied my leg,
And made me speak, or "scramble like an egg;"
Or called for "45," "and then some more,"
And paddled me so much that I was sore.
"That's for your freshness, rat," I've heard them say,
As through the door they slowly took their way;
And though the sheets were soon about me spread,
Eternal pains were shooting through my head.
These were thy charms dear Auburn: Nights like these,
When no fresh "rat" could sleep with any ease,
And "ratting" stories filled each new boy's head;
These were thy charms, but now these charms are fled.

MADE RESIGNING EASY.

When Delegate Mark Smith, of Arizona, was a boy, he lived on a big plantation in Kentucky. It was in slave days, and one of his father's slaves was Uncle Ike, who was the preacher for the place.

Smith's father had built a small church on a corner of the plantation, and Uncle Ike held forth there every Sunday. This was pleasing to Ike, because it not only gave him a chance to exhort the negroes, but it absolved him from any Sunday morning chores.

One Sunday Mark went out by the barn and found Uncle Ike sitting disconsolately under a tree. "Look here, Ike," said Mark, "why ain't you down there preachin'?"

What He Voted For.

A colored damsel was watching the progress of an election from a convenient fence corner.

"What they votin' fur, Miss Mattie?"

"For President," replied the mistress; "at least, for the men who will elect him."

"But what they votin' fur?"

"Oh, you mean who? Mr. Wilson is running against Mr. Taft. Now, if you're a Republican—"

"That ain't it, neither. 'Pears like white folks gits things awful mixed. I mean just what they votin' fur? I as 'lection pappy he voted fur a barrel of flour."

It costs money to advertise, but it costs more to try to do business without advertising.

THE OLD PAY ENVELOPE.

No, I never went to college,
And I am not up on Greek;
I wear a pair of overalls
And work hard throughout the week.

I've no academic theories
'Bout free trade and all such dope,
For a thorough education
In my old old pay envelope.

I am not against the college—
Wish I could have gone there, too,

For a thorough education
Helps a fellow to pull through;
But when educators teach us
That free trade's the nation's hope,
Gee! It makes me rather scary
For my old pay envelope!

Ah, that little paper package
Means a heap to wive and me,
Means a heap to all the children,
For it's bread and butter—see?
Keeps the little roof above us,
With no cares to interlope—
There is joy and peace and comfort
In my old pay envelope.

And it has been coming steady—
Coming steady, nice and fat;
But it vanished when the nation
Was ruled by a Democrat.

Ah, those bitter days of anguish,
Out of work and out of hope!
Seem life's sunshine all departed
With my old pay envelope.

I've no economic theories
Dancing round inside my head,
So I'll be hanged if you catch me
Voting 'gainst my daily bread.
I'll not help to kill the tariff,
And I want no Wilson dope,
For Protection's the insurance
For my old pay envelope.

ARMY CHIEF RECALLS HIS FOOTBALL DAYS.

If there ever was a warmer football fan than Leonard Wood, major general, chief of staff of the U. S. army, and ex-Rough Rider,
Atlanta never entertained him.
General Wood was in Atlanta yesterday for several hours, and he talked football and old Atlanta more than he did army matters.
He has a limp that would keep him from shining now in a broken field, but he still looks as though he might hold tight and luck hard in the line.

"So Auburn licked Tech this year," he remarked after a discussion of Southern games. "Well, that's bad. They tell me Tech has grown into a great school since the days when I played football here.

"Do you remember a man named Nelson, who played on the Auburn team in 1893? They had a great game here with Georgia in that year and I refereed. It was one of those long-drawn-out affairs that was rough-and-tumble while it lasted, and it lasted until after dark. This man Nelson came up to me after a close decision and shook his fist in my face.

Meets Him Ten Years Later.

"The next time I see you I'm going to lick h—ll out of you," he declared. I wouldn't get mad, and told him we'd settle it off the field. Then we both forgot it.

"Ten years after that, I was making an official tour in the Philippines, and way down at a place called Bongao I saw Nelson. He was commanding a company of American troops. I sent word that I wished to see him, and when we were out of earshot of the others, I turned on him suddenly.

"Nelson, you said the next time you saw me you were going to lick h—ll out of me," I said.
"Now's your time."

"He looked puzzled for a minute then broke into a laugh.

"Say, you must be the Wood who refereed that game," he replied with a laugh. Then we shook hands."—Atlanta Georgian.

D. O. Browning, '12, is meat and milk inspector in LaGrange, Ga.

I've led a fast life,
Earned all I spent,
Paid what I borrowed,
Lost all I lent.

I once had a girl,
That came to an end;
Get a good dog, boys,
He'll be your friend.

HIS IDENTITY.

"I presume you never quarrel with your wife?"
"Certainly not!" replied skimpy little Mr. Hennypeck. "I am merely a husband, not a lion tamer."

STUCK.

Uncle Ezra—"What's the matter with Eph Hoskins?"

Uncle Eben—"Tee-hee! He's up against it with three presidential candidates this year. He can remember how he went to school with one and licked another, but to save his neck he can't figure out how to immortalize himself with the third."

REMINDS HIM.

Smith—"This political campaign reminds me of baseball methods."

Jones—"Baseball methods?"

Smith—"Yes. One candidate manages his team from the bench, another seems to aspire to fame as a 'pinch-hitter,' the third wants to play all positions and be umpire at the same time."
